N.Y. Housing Named For Baruch's Father

Mayor William O'Dwyer, of New York, announced at City Hall that a 1,100-unit low-rent public housing project, to be built in the Lower East Side by the New York City Housing Authority, will be named for Dr. Simon Baruch, father of Bernard M. Baruch.

The decision to name the development for Dr. Baruch, who died in 1921, the Mayor said, was based on a desire to continue the identification of the Baruch name with the neighborhood. Dr. Baruch pioneered in establishing health and bath facilities for residents of the old cold-water, walk-up tenements of the Lower East Side.

The new housing project will be on a twelve-acre site extending from East Houston Street to Rivington Street between Columbia Street and Baruch Place. The latter, formerly called Goerck Street, runs from East Third Street to Grand Street. It was named for Dr. Baruch some time after 1917 when the Rivington Street Public Bath was renamed for him and a bronze tablet affixed in his honor.

As a result of a gift of $85,000 by Bernard M. Baruch the land adjacent to the public bath was obtained and made into a park, also named for his father, in 1940. The public bath was modernized in the same year. It is opposite this park and bath that the housing development is to be built.

Informed of the city's decision to name a housing project for his father, Mr. Baruch said: "It is very pleasing and very gratifying to know that my father is to be so recognized."

The new project will replace six blocks of slum buildings and will [illegible] program for $10,000 units in the nation. The buildings will be six and fourteen stories in height. Start of construction will depend on how soon the site can be cleared. Depending on construction costs, the Housing Authority reported, rents are expected to be from $8 to $9 a room.

"The Baruch name is appropriate for this housing project," Mayor O'Dwyer said. "The people who will live in this project will remember Dr. Simon Baruch, who

Giant Group Of Sculptor To Go On Bridge

Leo Friedlander, the American sculptor, who has been working almost continually for the last thirty years, was interviewed by the New York Herald Tribune concerning his latest creations, his philosophy on sculpturing, and his idea to build himself a large combination studio and home in the country.

To an urbanite, Mr. Friedlander's studio and home, at Hartsdale Road, West White Plains, N.Y., seems to be just about as far as a man should go in compromising with nature. Trees were nestled about his property, grass ran up to the front door, and there was perfect quiet, except for the sound of birds chirping.

Mr. Friedlander was active in his studio, doing things with soft clay, making tentative designs of a series of studies for two war memorials, which, when completed, will be of heroic size. But really this was a vacation when compared to Mr. Friedlander's recent tasks.

He has completed the plaster casts for two giant equestrian groups — each nineteen feet high and ten feet wide — to stand on pedestals on the Washington side of the Arlington (Va.) Memorial Bridge.

One group — Valor — shows a rider, strong and masculine, mounted on a horse, with a female figure striding at the side of the horse. The rider represents the nation's man power, while the woman is a symbol of the spirit of the nation.

The second group — Sacrifice — also details a male rider (this time representing Mars), while the walking lady is Mother Earth. The figure of a child is held high by [illegible] sacrifice—its Mark.

Mr. Friedlander explained that the role of the horses in both groups represents the power and the part that horses have played throughout the ages in war and combat.

Obviously, Mr. Friedlander is proud of his latest work; they will be among the largest equestrians ever cast in bronze, and to their author they stand with his four reliefs for the north and south entrances of the R.C.A. Building

Comedian Was World Famous For Years

Al Shean, the short and red-fezzed member of the vaudeville team of Gallagher and Shean that won world-wide fame in the 1920's with the song "Absolutely, Mister Gallagher; Positively, Mister Shean," died in New York at his home in the Ansonia Apartments, Broadway and Seventy-third Street. He was eighty-one years old.

Born in Dornum, Germany, he was the son of Louis Schonberg, a magician and ventriloquist, who lived to the age of 101. He was an uncle of the Four Marx Brothers and of Special Sessions Justice Irwin D. Davidson. He came to the United States at the age of eight and was reared on the East Side. After working as a pants presser and as an usher at the old Fourth Avenue Theatre, he began in vaudeville at the age of 16 with the Manhattan Comedy Four, which he organized.

Mr. Shean was stricken with a heart ailment on a tour last year, but had improved and his last illness was only two days. His wife, Mrs. Johanna Davidson Shean, died on June 27, 1944, a few months after their fifty-third wedding anniversary. A son, Lawrence Shean, survives. His nephews are the five Marx brothers — Groucho (Julius), Harpo (Arthur), Chico (Leonard), Zeppo (Herbert), and Gummo (Milton).

Mr. Shean was taken to Riverside Memorial Chapel, Amsterdam Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street, where a funeral service was held by Rabbi Irving Baumohl, of Beth Sholom Synagogue.

In June of 1920, Richard Bennett was playing in "Beyond the Horizon" at the Little Theatre, Fay West," William Collier was appearing in "The Hottentot" and Chauncey Olcott was the star of "Macushla."

These were the big houses. At the Fox (now Skoras) Crotona Theater, 177th Street and Tremont Avenue, the Bronx, a none-too-successful vaudeville team was sharing the bill with several other acts and a motion picture. Against a painted backdrop of the Egyptian desert, two men emerged from two small tents, a tall thin man with a pith helmet and a short man with a fez. They began to sing:

"It's Mister Gallagher, it's Mister Gallagher—
"As I live, why it's my old pal Mister Shean—
"It's a long time since we've met, but I know I'd find you yet—
"And I've been looking for you too for years it seems."
"Now that we're back again, let's do an act again. We can lay the plot right on this very scene. Our songs and jokes must all be new—
"Well, I'll leave that all to you. You're so clever, Mister Gallagher—
"And you're so funny, Mister Shean."

One of the most famous songs of American history, and one of its greatest vaudeville teams was born then. Edward F. Gallagher and Al Shean—born Albert Schonberg in Germany—were on their way, says the New York Times.

For Mr. Gallagher the way was to be short, and hard. Entangled in lawsuits, beset by marital problems, he died in 1929 in a sanitarium in Queens, where he had lain for three years, impoverished, paralysed, his mind clouded, supported by his divorced wife, Mrs. Helen Gallagher.

For Mr. Shean the road was long and pleasant. It brought him success as a dramatic actor on the stage and in the movies, radio contracts, an envied position as a white-haired, amiable little dean of the theatrical profession.

That night in the Bronx, everything looked fine. The song was a smash hit—Gallagher and Shean took three curtain calls. Headline vaudeville contracts poured in, and for three years the pair toured the country.

Florenz Ziegfeld hired them to sing their song as the feature of the "Ziegfeld Follies of 1923", though a law suit later showed they had jumped a Shubert contract to go with Ziegfeld. This did not affect the success of Gallagher and Shean.

They sang in "The Follies" for sixty-seven weeks. For another year they sang in "The Greenwich Village Follies". The song swept the nation. Gallagher and Shean added new lyrics for every possible

Photographer Was Head Of Unique Firm

Alfred Pach, president of Pach Brothers, 5 East Fifty-seventh Street, New York, noted photographers specializing in portraits, died in Mount Sinai Hospital after a long illness. Mr. Pach, who was 64 years old, lived at 40 Central Park South.

Since the retirement of his father, the late Gotthelf Pach, thirty years ago, Mr. Pach had headed the photography establishment. It was in 1867 that the elder Mr. Pach, then 14 years old, and his brother, the late Gustavus Pach, then 20, founded the firm in a studio they erected on the grounds of the United States Hotel at Long Branch, N.J., at the time a fashionable summer resort.

The brothers began their successful career with the financial backing of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, who was to be elected President the next year, and of Anthony J. Drexel, banker, and George W. Childs, publisher, both of Philadelphia.

Not content to do all their business at their studio, the ambitious brothers solicited more trade with a horse-drawn dark-room on wheels. The tintype "craze" was then at its height, and soon the brothers were photographing many celebrities, including, of course, General Grant. In fact, the firm has photographed every American President since Grant.

At the close of the summer season of 1867 the brothers opened a gallery at 100 Bowery. Later the firm moved to Thirteenth Street and then to Twenty-second Street. After that it was successively at [illegible] Fifth Avenue and 942 Fifth Avenue at Seventy-first Street.

Mr. Pach was born in New York and attended the Ethical Culture School, public schools and City College. He was a member of The Lambs, The Artists and Writers Association and the Fifth Avenue Association.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Maude Kraus Pach; a son, Alfred Pach Jr. of New York; and a brother, Walter Pach, of New York, painter and art historian.

Tours DP Camps To Pick Refugees

Insect destruction of agricultural crops saddened the entomologist, but the waste of human resources in displaced persons camps shocked him into action.

Equipped with a to-whom-it-may-concern letter of introduction, Dr. Alexander A. Granovsky, Professor of Entomology and Economic Zoology at the University of Minnesota, flew to Germany a few weeks ago.

The 51-year-old scientist persuaded American Zone officials to grant necessary permits. Visiting camps at Hanau, Munich, Aschaffenburg, Berchtesgaden, Regensburg, Leipheim and elsewhere, Dr. Granovsky waged a one-man drive to rescue from oblivion at least a part of the 65,000 DP's, mostly of Ukrainian origins. He expressed interest primarily in skilled workers, artists, scientists and persons in cultural pursuits.

He addressed thousands and interviewed hundreds of anti-Communist refugee men and women to find those best qualified for American industry and agriculture. Finally he selected fifty-six families, 120 individuals in all to be "processed" by voluntary agencies cooperating with the Displaced Persons Commission. They will be on their way soon to America.

Dr. Granovsky, who came to the U.S. from the Ukraine in 1913, previously had filed assurances on 115 other DP's, that they would not become public charges and that

Thousands File Past Body Of Herzl

The body of Dr. Theodor Herzl, the founder of political Zionism, who in the 1890's promoted the first practical steps which led ultimately to the establishment of Israel, was reburied in Jerusalem on August 17. It arrived by plane from Vienna, where he died and was buried in 1904. In Jerusalem there was a three-mile procession to the burial ground.

The procession followed the route that Mr. Herzl took from there forty-seven years ago when he last visited Jerusalem. It is a route that has seen many battles, from the Philistines to the most recent days when an Israeli army fought its way to the Arab-besieged city.

The plane from Vienna with Mr. Herzl's body was flown by a young man from Brooklyn, Capt. Michael J. Morse of 611 Logan Street. It circled Lydda airport, accompanied by four air force fighters. As it settled on the airport apron a guard of honor composed of army, navy and air force and flanked by squads of helmeted soldiers and police, stood at attention. As the plane landed the members of the Knesset (Assembly) led by the Premier, and including scores of other dignitaries, went forward to meet the Israeli guard of honor who had accompanied the coffin.

The metal coffin, encased in a wooden box and covered with a prayer shawl inscribed with seven golden stars, was taken from the plane and placed on a black bier.

MARRIAGES

SEIDMAN-PALLEY

The marriage of Miss Shirley Palley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. Palley, 5481 St. Urbain Street, to Morris Seidman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Seidman, 7760 Stuart Avenue, took place in Chevra Kadisha Synagogue, on Sunday, June 19, at half-past seven o'clock, Dr. C. N. Denburg, Rabbi, officiating, assisted by Rev. A. Kenner. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore white Chantilly lace over white slipper-satin, having a form-fitting bodice, with a stand-up, petal-effect collar, and long, dolman sleeves ending in points, with her bouffant, gored skirt finishing in a long train of lace. Her finger-tip-length tulle illusion was held by a crown of seed pearl beads, and mauve orchids and lilies-of-the-valley adorned the prayer book which she carried. Mrs. Louis Fogul, sister of the bride, was matron of honour. Gowned in powder-blue Chantilly lace over blue taffeta, with an off-the-shoulder neckline, form-fitting bodice and full skirt, she had a lace tiara and carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnations. Misses Sheila Fogul and Barbara Finkelstein were junior bridesmaids, the former gowned in Nile green and the latter in yellow nylon, made with round, ruffled necklines, puffed sleeves, and hooped skirts. They had coronets of flowers in their hair, and each had a nosegay of early summer flowers. Ben. Palley, brother of the bride, was best man, and the ushers were: Mark Seidman, Manuel Leibovitch, Ben. Finkelstein, Isaie Spivack, Arthur Dick, David Grac, Murray Lipson, and Bernard Lipson, with Brian Birnbaum as page boy. Standards of seasonal flowers, ferns, and candelabra adorned the aisles in the chapel, and the canopy was decorated with flowers and ferns in a picture frame effect. Organ music was played throughout the ceremony, and "Because" was sung. The community hall of the synagogue, in which the reception took place, was decorated with standards of flowers, and floral arrangements were on the tables. Mrs. Palley received in a caramel-coloured crepe dinner gown, with lace gloves and profile hat to match, and had a corsage of Talisman roses. Mrs. Seidman wore a green chiffon gown, with gloves to match, a picture hat, and a corsage of Talisman roses. The bride wore a navy-blue polka-dot dress, with white linen fly-away jacket, navy-blue accessories and white Baku hat for the trip to New York, the couple later proceeding to Atlantic City, N.J. They are residing at 5481 St. Urbain Street. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Palley, Bronx, N.Y., were wedding guests.

SEAL-MATLIN

The marriage of Miss Rhoda Matlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Matlin, 744 Querbes Avenue, to Phil. Seal, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Seal, 204 Bernard Avenue West, took place in Chevra Kadisha Synagogue, on Thursday, June 9, at half-past six o'clock, Dr. C. N. Denburg, Rabbi, officiating. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in white satin, fashioned with a form-fitting bodice which had a V-shaped lace yoke and long sleeves ending in a point at the wrists, and a bouffant skirt extending into a long train. Her headdress, which was in the shape of a horseshoe, was of lilies-of-the-valley and tulle, and she carried a bouquet of Calla lilies. Miss Cyrille Matlin was maid of honour, in a blue changeable taffeta gown, fashioned with rows of tucking at the portrait neckline and a full skirt. Her headdress was of tiny blue rosebuds and veiling, and she carried a bouquet of red roses. Myra Cohen, of Hawkesbury, Ont., was flower girl, in a dress of green net over green taffeta, floor-length, fashioned with a low neckline and wiring at the hemline of the skirt, which had net draping and pink ribbon trimming, and she carried a nosegay of pink carnations and green ribbon. Don. Seal was best man, and the ushers were: Eddie Lazare, Hyman Tessler, Zelig Weinstein, Fred Arshinoff, Joseph Klein, Lester Finkelstein, Irving Gotheil, and Leo Rothman, with Eddy Seal as junior usher. Eddie Lohner was ring boy, dressed in white. The chapel was decorated with standards of flowers, ferns, and candelabra. The reception took place in the community hall of the synagogue. The bride's mother wore a gown of beige lace over crepe, which had a sweetheart neckline, and long sleeves, and a picture hat to match, and carried yellow Tea roses. The groom's mother was in midnight-blue lace over crepe, fashioned with a semi-full skirt, and had a multi-colored tulle headdress and matching flowers. The couple left on a trip to New York; Niagara Falls, N.Y.; and Atlantic City, N.J., the bride travelling in a grey suit, with navy-blue accessories, and navy-blue straw hat. The couple are residing at 5790 Darlington Avenue. Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. M. Dove and family; Mr. and Mrs. J. Gitelson, of Newark, N.J., Mr. and Mrs. J. It was then carried to an army truck, also draped in black. Seated on either side of the truck were four officers with drawn bayonets.

The coffin was taken to the square on the seafront outside the Parliament buildings where a catafalque had been set up to receive it. Thousands filed past it and at dawn the coffin was taken to Jerusalem for final burial.

Joseph Sprinzak, Speaker of the Knesset and Acting State President, read a moving message from President Chaim Weizmann who is in Switzerland for reasons of health.

President Weizmann wired:

"The soil of the fatherland is receiving unto its bosom the man who conceived the vision of the state that has become reality. Herzl led us along the path of fulfillment of the cravings of generations. He and he alone was destined to and worthy of leading us to statehood.

"It is our great privilege to be transferring the remains of the-visionary to the liberated land of Israel, interring him in our eternal capital."

Mr. Ben-Gurion declared:

"Side by side with the tombs of kings and prophets a stone monument will be erected over Herzl, the mortal. But the monument to Herzl the immortal is the state of Israel which will be built up and will grow and become beautiful in love of her sons and builders."

did so much for earlier generations in this area, and his distinguished son, Bernard M. Baruch, who has inherited and expanded his father's philanthropic, public and civic interests."

Dr. Baruch, who served with the Confederate forces as a surgeon during the Civil War, was born in Germany and came to the United States as a youth. He obtained his medical training in Charleston, S.C., and at the Medical College of Virginia.

Dr. Baruch came to New York in 1881, establishing a reputation for his insistence on immediate operation for cases of appendicitis and for his development of treatment by hydrotherapy. He was professor of hydrotherapy at the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University.

In 1901, what is claimed to have been the first public bath in the United States was opened through his efforts in Rivington Street. It was also through his efforts as a member of the Saratoga Commission that the Saratoga Mineral Springs were developed by New York State for treatment of dis-ease.

Do You Know...

if lightning can strike the same place twice?

Despite popular belief it has been proved that lightning can and does strike in the same place more than once. Any substance or building which attracts a discharge of lightning once will probably attract it again and again. The Empire State Building, for example, has been 'struck' by lightning scores of times — sometimes more than once in the same storm.

Do You Know . . . that each flash of lightning is not necessarily followed by a crash of thunder? Silent lightning is not unusual.

Do You Know . . . that lightning often comes up from the earth? This happens when charges of electricity shoot up from the ground, meet discharges from the clouds and cause lightning flashes.

Do You Know . . . that lightning does not zigzag, as it is popularly believed? Scientific investigation has shown that lightning travels in a long irregular, ribbon-like line — it is never acutely angled.

Do You Know any interesting and unusual facts? Our "Advisory Panel" will pay $25 for any authenticated readers' submissions if they are usable. All letters become our property. Write Black Horse Brewery, Station L, Montreal, P.Q.

DP TYPES ARE EVERYWHERE

By Shmuel Barav, Of The American Hashomer Hadati, Now In Israel

Imagine living on the third floor of a 200 foot long masonry building, originally constructed to house German soldiers; living in a room 20 by 35 feet with one other family (which cooks over its separate coal stove in the far corner) and two single men; the only partition between your section of the room and that of the others is a pile of valises; your family has two babies — one 16 months old and the other 3 months — and the other family has four children — one of the father by a previous marriage (wife died in Siberia), one of the mother by a previous marriage and two by the present marriage.

Imagine your community, with its 2000 people, with the single men outnumbering the single women three to one, with recreational facilities as follows: one theater (showing a movie every two weeks), three coffee houses (one of which has four pool tables), and nothing except the streets for the children (600 of them below the age of 12) to play in.

Imagine this community with a theft and drunkenness rate far lower than that of any city of comparable size in France or Germany, with not more than one act of personal violence (and that never more than a fist fight) per month, and no murder since the community was founded....

That is a partial description of a DP "camp" in the U. S. Zone of occupied Germany.

Will such a life create cases for a psychiatrist?

Some self-styled authorities claim that the DP's are beset with psychological problems, that the loss of their families, their wanderings, and their present demoralizing situation have permanently twisted their emotions. In fact, however, the most disappointing thing about the DP's is their very normalcy. They are no more abnormal than the average person in any society (in your spare time consider the philosophical implications of the difference between "average" and "normal"). Except for their poorer financial state and their language they are exactly like the average Jewish "baalebas" in any small American City. Their interests are the same, their preoccupation with business is the same, their lack of Jewish education is the same.

Consider, for example, the attitude of DP's toward Jewish nationalism. They consider themselves Jews by nation—more so than do the emancipated and privileged Jews of America—because in their countries of origin (Poland and Romania for the vast majority) Jews have always been considered a nationality apart. But not all are carried away by their nationalistic fervor, no more so than are the Jews of America.

Of course, the majority favor Israel. On occasion, however, one encounters men like the young Czech who wanted to go to the States. He used an argument which sometimes stumped committees engaged in recruiting military personnel for Israel during the spring of 1947.

"I have suffered enough," he exclaimed, "for having been a Jew! I want to rest a while in America, where my uncle can get me a good job. If, as some say, anti-Semitism will grow in America, at least I shall have had a few years of prosperity."

Such men are few, but they indicate that DP's do not have feet of clay, nor do they wear wings.

Consider another aspect of DP life—the religious. Back home, the Jew of Poland had been played up as the reservoir of all that was good in Jewish life. Part of the Joint Distribution Committee appeal to religious groups was this very argument—that the remnant of Polish Jewry must be saved to revitalize the religious life of any community in which they might settle. In the camps, the religiosity of Jews was equal to that of the Jews in America.

Anti-religious feeling is not as excessive as that of some groups in Israel (this feeling may be tied in with attitudes towards Stalinism—the DP's hate Soviet Russia, and nine-tenths of those now in Germany are refugees from Soviet-dominated countries, not the remnants of Nazi concentration camps).

There is, moreover, considerable respect for Judaism. I once attended a trial held in secret in a camp. The trial was actually illegal, but we hoped to hide some intra-camp troubles from the U.S. authorities. The chief judge was the rabbi, and there was a Sefer Torah on the bench. I was a bit fearful lest some of the irreligious Jews be tempted to mock the procedure. I was reassured by one of the DP's, himself a member of Hashomer Hatzair, that no Jew would dare to treat the Torah with disrespect.

The synagogues are fully attended only on Rosh Hashonah and Yom Kippur. The places of worship are usually sponsored by the Zionist parties—the average camp of 200 will have one Agudah synagogue, one Mizrachi, one non-

CLASS IN COOKERY

PRUNE NUT BREAD

two cups sifted all-purpose flour three level teaspoons baking powder
one teaspoon salt
one-half cup shortening (or butter)
one teaspoon cinnamon one cup sugar (or less) two eggs
three-quarters cup finely chopped cooked prunes one-half cup cold milk (or water)
one cup chopped nuts (optional)

Sift flour, baking powder, salt, and cinnamon. Cream shortening and sugar, until light and fluffy, add eggs, one at a time, beat well, fold in the prunes, add flour mixture to cream mixture, alternately with milk, and add nuts. Pour mixture into a greased loaf pan, four and one-half inches by eight and one-half inches. Bake in a moderate oven at 350 degrees, for one hour and fifteen minutes.

Mrs. M. Kriss,

87 Burnside Drive, Toronto.

CHOCOLATE CHIP CAKE

one-half cup butter
one and one-half cups sugar one and one-half teaspoons vanilla
one teaspoon salt
one cup milk
one square bitter chocolate, grated two and one-quarter cups cake flour two and one-half rounded teaspoons baking powder
two eggs, separated

Cream butter; blend in sugar, egg yolks, salt, and vanilla. Add alternately the dry ingredients with the milk. Beat the egg whites until stiff, but not dry, and fold into the batter. Lastly, carefully fold in the grated bitter chocolate, so that the chocolate does not run into the white cake mixture. Pour into two greased and floured eight-inch layer-cake tins and bake for thirty or thirty-five minutes in a 350- or 375-degree oven.

Chocolate Icing:

two heaping tablespoons butter
two heaping tablespoons granulated sugar two squares melted bitter chocolate one egg
one-half teaspoon vanilla

Cream butter and sugar; add egg, and chocolate, then vanilla. If this is too thin, put in refrigerator for short time, and beat with spoon; or with a dover beater, which will make icing like whipping cream. This is a shiny, thin icing.

Mrs. J. C. Schwartzman,

5855 Terrebonne Avenue, Montreal.

political one. In some areas Bnai Akiba, the only sizeable religious youth organization, holds its own services. Religious learning (as, indeed, general education) is all but absent.

The labor camps in Russia and the anarchical migration through war-torn countries took their toll of "those raised on scarlet," the more refined and educated, who could not bring themselves to lie, cheat, and steal in order to remain alive. There is a temporary ignorance of Jewish laws, history, and ceremonials—what people remember of the customs of their childhood becomes the approved practice.

Typical of such ignorance was a heated argument on the difference between Yiddish, Hebrew, Lashon Hakodesh, and the language of the Bible. One of the disputants claimed they were four distinct tongues. One remark was made to me in a transit camp somewhere in France. A man saw me reading a book on anthropology, the introduction of which traced the evolutionary development of modern man. He had once heard of Darwin, but knew nothing of biology nor any of the other sciences. "How," he demanded, "do you expect a man like myself, who knows of modern science, to believe in God?" This is the same argument raised by equally uneducated Jewish businessmen in the States.

In their economic activity, the Jews remaining in Europe again betray their normalcy. A normal, average person in our society will try to earn a living the easiest way. Many of the DP's have turned to bartering (called "black-marketing" by those who do not understand the economic situation of Germany from 1945 to 1948) because that is the only way to arrange for greater variety in one's diet, to insure special medical care for one's children, or to gain a bit more security for the future (usually in the form of an easily transportable item of concentrated value like a camera or watch) than is afforded by an IRO ration card.

Trading is not any more instinctive among the DP's than it is among American Jews, or among Armenians, or Yankees, or the Canaanite of the Bible. It is a specific response to a specific situation, an attempt to make the most of conditions, to gain the greatest comfort with the least expenditure of effort. If conditions change, the people will. When they are convinced that hard work earns a better livelihood in Israel than does trading, they will turn to work.

Unfortunately, however, store tending still "pays off", and even the surprisingly easier physical conditions on most kibbutzim cannot compete with the imaginary conveniences of city life. In some areas of settlement it seems, as someone so aptly put it, the recent immigrants are trying to make a living by selling "gazoz" (soda-water) to each other; in Tel Aviv, however, one gains the impression that the "natives" have been making a living by selling clothing, pastry, and shoes to one another.

As average people — ironically enough, like Israelis of earlier immigrations who now criticize them for not going into agriculture— the recent arrivals from Europe gravitate toward the apparently more pleasant life. Let no one blame them for not being at first more noble, more idealistic, more self-sacrificing, than the average Jew in the Diaspora or the average Jew in Israel.

The Jews of the world must sponsor and insure a nation destined to overcome the adversities of two millenia. The actual carrying out of this work requires the best that world Jewry can offer—mediocrity will not succeed. There are many tasks requiring a certain height of devotion, of that sacrificial devotion toward a self-chosen task which oppression and coercion tend to dull. And understanding is needed as well. An understanding of the Land of Israel as more than a refuge, but as the place to demonstrate the vitality of Judaism and of the people it has influenced. This understanding comes only to those raised in the traditional spirit of our heritage.

This height of devotion and this breadth of understanding are the greatest needs of Israel rebuilding, needs which have yet to be answered to the necessary degree.

This article is from The Jewish Outlook.

When you go swimming this summer you'd be wise to learn to dive. Or, if you must enter the water feet first, hold your nose. Water forced up into the nostrils often stings unpleasantly, but it may also carry infection to the nose, throat and sinuses. Swimming is a healthful recreation, but like all sports we need to know the rules to play it properly and safely. Make a point of learning to swim this summer. And teach your children the art. It is a fine, healthy exercise.

Many of the deadliest enemies of mankind are more easily defeated when their presence is detected early and measures taken against them before they have had a chance to entrench themselves solidly. This is often the case with cancer or tuberculosis. Early detection and treatment of these diseases tremendously improves the chances of complete recovery. Don't let fear put you off. See a doctor at once if you have cause for suspicion. It may save your life.

Every summer the threat of polio sends a chill of fear down the spines of parents. You can do a lot to protect your children by keeping them away from crowds, watching out for nose and throat infections and consulting a doctor at once if you suspect polio may have struck. Good health habits help protect everyone from disease.

"Eating out" is a popular pastime with many Canadian families and the restaurant industry has grown tremendously in recent years to cater to the needs of those who "eat out" for business or pleasure. Restaurant patrons are entitled to good food and service. They should insist on cleanliness and patronize those restaurants which follow the rules of good sanitation. You expect dishes and utensils to be clean at home. Insist on the same cleanliness when you take your meals in a restaurant.

Traces Child Crime To Bad Homes

More than 80 per cent of the cases of serious juvenile delinquency handled by the New York Police Department show no religious affiliation for either the offender or his parents, said James B. Nolan, Sixth Deputy Police Commissioner of New York, speaking at the three-day conference of the New York State Sheriffs Association at the Plaza Hotel. He told the peace officers that the school, the church and the home were still the most powerful antidotes to juvenile crime.

After pointing out that the great majority of young offenders lacked active religious training, he said:

"Most of them will say that they are Protestant, Catholic, or Jewish—but in name only. There is no real participation in church activities, either by the child or parents. We all appreciate the importance of religious training. It gives the child his moral content, which has greater substance to effect good social living than any other principle of living.

"To discuss ethics without morality is to emit hollow sounds, so we need the help of the priest, the minister or the rabbi to become interested in the erring youngster and his parents and to develop in them a sound religious affiliation."

In 85 per cent of serious delinquency Mr. Nolan said, the police found a defective home life with "parents who do not know how to be parents." The school environment also was important, he stressed, because delinquency often began with truancy from school. While the Juvenile Aid Bureau of the Police Department functioned as a referral agency, he said police social workers had shown their merit.

ABC and HIGH STANDARDS GO TOGETHER

In qualifying for membership in the Audit Bureau of Circulations, publishers are doing more than providing advertisers with the facts about the circulation of their publications.

They are also giving active support to the principle that advertising space should be bought and sold only on the basis of verified information — a principle that has contributed in large measure to the interests of all advertisers.

In Canada, the Canadian Jewish Review is still the only Jewish publication printed in any language reaching the Jewish community which is able to claim membership in the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

CARLING'S CONSERVATION CORNER

WELL, OLD MAN—THAT'S A GREAT DAY'S FISHING! BUT SOMETIMES I CAN'T HELP WONDERING HOW LONG IT IS GOING TO LAST... MAYBE WE FISHERMEN AND HUNTERS SHOULD DO SOMETHING TO SAVE OUR SPORT
THAT'S A GREAT IDEA! LET'S HAVE A LOOK AROUND AND SEE WHAT WE CAN DO
SO THIS IS "DEERLICK"... IT'S GOING TO TAKE A LONG TIME TO DO MUCH WITH IT, BUT THEN NATURE HAS TAKEN A LONG TIME TOO
WE MIGHT AS WELL START WITH TREES, THEN MAYBE A DAM AND TROUT POND
GUESS THAT MAKES ABOUT ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND TREES NOW... AND BETWEEN FIFTY AND SIXTY VARIETIES, TOO!
AND THINK OF ALL OUR PHEASANTS, DUCKS AND GEESE! THIS PLACE HAS TAKEN A NEW LEASE ON LIFE
THIS BEATS ANYTHING I COULD HAVE IMAGINED! OUR OWN TROUT POND... AND NATURE ALL AROUND
YES, "DEERLICK" WAS JUST A DESERT IN 1942, BUT IT SHOWS WHAT YOU CAN DO FOR CONSERVATION IF YOU PUT YOUR MIND TO IT

A. S. Wagner and F. S. Scarrow of Delhi, Ontario, deserve the highest praise for their contribution to conservation. Their efforts here made a beauty spot of once worthless land.

occasion — it was a song that didn't really need lyrics, just the catchy tune and the tag line—and amateur vocalists made up their own words. It was said to be the most-parodied song in history.

Royalties from the song brought $2,000 a week at the height of its popularity. After Mr. Gallagher died, Mr. Shean tried without success to find another partner, then "soloed" in vaudeville with the act "Business is Business." He played roles in "Betsy", "The Prince of Pilsen" and "Light Wines and Beer," then was "discovered" again in 1931, in the leading role of the Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein II musical "Music in the Air." This earned him a motion picture contract.

Mr. Shean returned to the stage in 1937, and achieved his greatest dramatic success, in the role of Father Malachy in "Father Malachy's Miracle." Later he returned to the movies, playing in "The Road Back," "The Prisoner of Zenda", "Fifty-second Street", and "The Great Waltz."

Mr. Shean's father was a strolling magician in Germany and his mother was a harpist. They brought their act to New York when their son was ten. He worked as an usher in the old Fourth Avenue Theater, then went into vaudeville. He led for fifteen years "The Manhattan Comedy Four." In 1900, he began a double vaudeville act with Charles Warren, and in 1910 met Mr. Gallagher.

They toured the world in a skit called "The Battle of Bay Rum", enjoying only moderate success, and split up in 1916, after a quarrel. Each went off on a separate act, and Mr. Shean augmented his income by writing vaudeville acts. One of them, "Home Again", was for his nephews, the Marx Brothers, and that was the basis of their first great success, "Cocoanuts."

Mr. Shean also appeared as a German dialect comedian in such successes as "Flo-Flo", "Friendly Enemies" and "As You Were." Then Mr. Shean's sister brought her brother and Mr. Gallagher together again.

In working up the material for their new act, Mr. Shean offered a little tune he had, and Bryan Foy, now a motion picture director, wrote some words. It was done in fifteen minutes and was called "The Two Horsemen of the Eucalyptus" but neither Mr. Shean nor Mr. Gallagher was quite satisfied. They changed some lyrics and they changed the title. Then they went on at the Crotona Theater in the Bronx.

In an interview on his eightieth birthday—at which he sang the old song—Mr. Shean said he liked his life and had few regrets. "I have my own epitaph," he said. "Make it: 'Born May 12, 1868. I might have lived a little longer, but now it's too late'."

Surviving, besides his son, Lawrence, of Seattle, are a sister, Mrs. Hannah Schickler, of New York; and a grandson, Alan.

TOURS DP CAMPS

jobs awaited them. He had buttonholed friends in Minnesota to sign necessary documents, then landed jobs for the DP's, with whom he had corresponded since 1945.

Of the 115, about seventy have emigrated to Minnesota, where they have become foresters, mining engineers, graphic artists, architects, carpenters, chemists, governesses and office girls. The others are on their way to America.

The DP benefactor explained in New York that his efforts had been expedited by the kindness of Charles Ward, president of Brown & Bigelow, St. Paul, Minn. printing concern. He showed a letter of introduction signed by Mr. Ward, soliciting skilled help in the graphic arts field, orchard, and domestic workers.

Dr. Granovsky said also that Robert Butler, United States Ambassador to Cuba, had asked him to recruit ten families of bricklayers, an architect, a draftsman and an artist.

"By virtue of my position in the university and because of my political activities," he said, "people wrote to me. It is my intention now to help students and scientists, and they need not be Ukrainians. It so happened I had closest contact with them.

"I was impressed while in Germany that someone there mismanaged displaced persons affairs and wasted invaluable human resources, that their energies and knowledge had not been harnessed to creative use."

Explaining his numerous interviews, the professor said he had jotted down "life histories," for use in future placements. He spoke with biologists, agronomists, geneticists, teachers and musicians, among others. Their emigration will be facilitated, he added, through the Church World Service, the International Rescue and Relief Committee and the United Ukrainian-American Relief Committee.

Dr. Granovsky reported that he had found time also to use profitably a second letter of introduction, from J. L. Morill, president of the University of Minnesota. The letter enabled him to continue scientific research at Cambridge University, England, and in Paris, on insects in their relation to human welfare.

He specializes in studying the transmission of plant diseases by insects. He has been teaching at Minnesota since 1930 and for eight years before was at the University of Wisconsin, where he received his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees. On July 19 at Regensburg the Ukrainian Polytechnic Institute awarded Dr. Granovsky an honorary degree.

GIANT GROUP

in Rockefeller Center, as the finest examples of his work.

The two groups, having been cut carefully into a number of neat pieces, are now stored in a government warehouse waiting to be cast into bronze.

Mr. Friedlander was born in New York City on July 6, 1890. He studied in Brussels and Paris, and at the age of twenty won his first contest—an award to do the sculpture work for the Washington Memorial Arch at Valley Forge. He later studied at the American Academy in Rome, where from 1913 to 1916 he held the Prix de Rome, a scholarship won in competition.

From that time he has been working; he did the George Eastman Memorial, at Kodak Park, Rochester, N.Y.; the nineteen-foot granite figure of Roger Williams at Columbia Terrace, Providence, R.I.; two seventeen-foot equestrian groups in marble, one representing the Western pioneers, Lewis and Clark, and the other of the Covered Wagon, for the state capitol at Salem, Ore.

Mr. Friedlander is represented in the permanent collection of the Metropolitan Museum of Art with Bacchante, a female in bronze, squeezing a bunch of grapes into a platter. He also created the four thirty-three-foot figures, representing the Four Freedoms, for Constitution Mall, at the New York's World's Fair.

Mr. Friedlander gave a capsule impression of his own artistic values.

"I believe in sound progressivism," he said. "I believe that there is such a thing as sound modern art, but I exclude many of the exotic works that parade under this banner. A work of art should convey a feeling of beauty to the beholder, and it should not have to be elucidated by lip service."
